ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus for initializing a memory are disclosed. A disclosed system initializes a subset of memory and then loads an operating system. Subsets of a remaining memory are initialized during operating system idle periods. A notification for the operating system to dynamically incorporate the subsets of the remaining memory is created.